

ANNUAL REVIEW

The Society of Homeopaths has pleasure in presenting the Annual Review of 2020 as a membership organisation representing professional homeopaths.

CHAIR'S LETTER

Looking back at my letter in the last Annual Review, I was reminded that 2019 was not a great year for us. To top that, I think 2020 was not a great year for anyone.

Linda Wicks

It's hard to remember much about January and February, because in March our lives changed radically as news of the Coronavirus pandemic dominated the media, and has been relentless ever since. The global repercussions that followed created a dramatic and gloomy backdrop to our individual lives, as we looked on, adjusting, adapting or resisting.

Challenged

On the same day that 'Lockdown 1' was announced, Selina Hatherley and I were in the Northampton Office with our staff, saying goodbye to Emily Buttrum, who had been our CEO for six months. We had been energized and challenged by her vision and drive, but unfortunately she decided after six months that the role was not right for her. It was incredibly fortunate that Richard O'Quinn was willing to step down from the Board and take on the post of Interim CEO – an arrangement we expected would only be for 3 months at most. Richard was able to see staff through the process of transferring operations to their homes, ensuring that despite this there was no interruption to our usual work. Since that day, the office has remained empty for most of the time, like so many other workplaces. Over the year, arrangements were made to lease the top floor, so some activity has returned, along with a small income.

Concurrently, the Society was facing ongoing, detractor-led interventions and attacks either directly or through the media. These, alongside the constant change prompted by the wider healthcare landscape, led to increasing pressure from the Professional Standards Authority in the form of a series of additional reviews.

Our vision

The Society's vision for many years has been 'to see Homeopathy firmly established within British healthcare', and our aim is to position ourselves in the best arena to protect our members' right to practise and the public's right to choose a registered homeopath. In 2014, accreditation through the PSA was the only available route for us to take towards that vision, and for 5 years we maintained solid ground in that achievement. Over 2020, we continued to develop and build on our professional standards, with greater focus on public safety.

Sadly, by the summer, Richard became unwell, and we were still in various stages of lockdown, so we moved quickly to re-recruit. In August, Stephen Bishop joined us, and has proved invaluable in steering us with calm competence through several very difficult months.

Finding a way

As homeopaths, each of us had to consider altering our ways of working, too. At first there was a flurry of confusing government guidelines which we all tried to interpret as best we could, then gradually individual practitioners found their own way to continue work – either online, by phone or in clinic settings with additional safety procedures.

As mainstream health services faced huge pressures, many people felt adrift, anxious and in need of greater support. Our members have continued to be available for those who choose homeopathy to strengthen their health and resilience.

Thanks to the commitment of our members, staff and directors, there have also been many other achievements this year, which are well documented in this review.

Reaching out

We are always keen to listen to members in order to inform strategy and refine our direction of travel. In 2020 we undertook a consultation process on the whole area of standards and regulation, and through the use of a number of methods including the online forum, focus groups, a survey and video conferencing, we were able to reach more members, including many we rarely hear from. Also, 'local' meetings became less geographically defined and more far reaching. Discussion time was a key part of our AGM and conference planning, and staff and directors are always available for one-to-one phone calls.

Connecting with members

Much as we all missed meeting up in person last year, we were able to connect through a series of successful events which were offered free to all members – our first online AGM, a conference with international speakers, a student day, a new practitioners' webinar and an Educators' event. Added to these, we've launched a regular series of lunchtime "Practice Support" workshops which are providing a popular springboard for sharing views and experiences.

As Maggie Dixon stood down from the Board last year after 5 years' service, we welcomed Zofia Dymitr back as a director. Rosslyn Stuart joined us as Independent Director in September, and we said goodbye to our two other long-serving and committed Independent Directors, Robert Pitts and Judith Kiely, at the end of the year.

Looking forward

Moving into a new year, we hope to see an end to lockdowns and to embrace a re-emergence of contact, warmth and positivity. 2020 has hit us hard as individuals, as an organisation and as a profession. We look forward to a time of recovery, restoration and renewal - rebuilding our strength together.

LETTER FROM INTERIM CEO

"We can expect that change will be an enduring element of all our futures."

I was privileged to join the Society as Interim CEO just over half way through 2020. It was immediately clear how much change the Society had already had to deal with in a short space of time. Internally, two of my predecessors had left their positions early, and other staff positions within the organisation were unfilled for a time.

The staff had quickly accommodated the new Working From Home approach to office life during the first lockdown, aided by their long experience and commitment to the organisation. Later in the year we welcomed three new Independent Directors to the Board who will help to refresh our vision and provide added impetus. Although Covid-19 had directly touched members of staff and members of the Board, thankfully no one had been critically ill as a result of the disease. Of course, the long-term effects of the virus, and its impact on daily life are as yet unknown.

Pandemic

The Westminster government responded to the pandemic with inconsistent and incomplete advice, often ignoring the CAM sector entirely. Nevertheless, our professional standards team provided continual guidance, emphasising personal safety for our members and their patients at all times. Our health regulator provided changing and sometimes conflicting instructions during the year, and will itself almost certainly be changing its approach to regulation markedly in 2021. We continue to be the leading body for maintaining the standards of our profession.

Stephen Bishop

New solutions

With challenges come new solutions, and our inability to hold face to face meetings has given rise to hosting local group meetings, workshops and webinars via Zoom. What we lose in human contact we gain in time and cost savings in not travelling nor needing to book physical space. We can actually see and hear more of our members. The Society has been able to instigate the ambitious 'My Practice' webinar series, which have been presented free – a positive change to help our members through difficult times. It would be a brave person who would confidently predict what the next twelve months will hold in store, but we can expect that change will be an enduring element of all our futures.

We are ready to embrace it once again at the Society of Homeopaths.

"Our health regulator provided changing and sometimes conflicting instructions during the year, and will itself almost certainly be changing its approach to regulation markedly in 2021. We continue to be the leading body for maintaining the standards of our profession."

MEMBERSHIP HIGHLIGHTS

Despite the constraints imposed on us all as a result of the Coronavirus pandemic, we continued to provide support throughout 2020 by providing services to support and advise all grades of membership from student through to registered practitioners and on to those contemplating retirement. During 2020 we continued to develop the range of membership services offered to support members in practice.

Business as usual

The staff team moved to remote working and continued to provide the full range of services during the Coronavirus pandemic.

Consulting members

Online meetings and surveys were held to give members the opportunity to have their say.

Keeping in touch

e-newsletters, the website Forum and social media keep members up to date with the latest news and developments with additional information relating to remote working and current government advice on the pandemic.

Publication of New Homeopath

With its bold and contemporary design, New Homeopath reflects the practice of homeopathy around the world today. Now in its fourth year, New Homeopath is building a reputation as essential reading for the modern homeopath. In addition to members who receive the journal as a membership benefit, there are journal subscribers in North America, continental Europe and India, as well as in the UK.

Members area of the website

An extensive range of resources including marketing and business support via the CPD hub, the My Voice range of resources offering advice to make the case for homeopathy, online journal library, research resources and films provide access to a wealth of valuable information.

Online register

Our up-to-date online register of accredited professionals, searchable by geo-location, makes it easier for potential patients to find a homeopath. Existing patients can check the credibility of RSHoms using the word search, providing assurance of the care they will receive.

The Find a Homeopath online register received 35,500 hits in 2020.

Patient information

The website received 21,500 hits from patients looking for further information about homeopathy, a huge increase of 152% compared to 2019.

A commitment to sustainability

We continue the electronic delivery of insurance certificates, online annual fee invoices and other membership services and enhanced My membership - the personal online one stop facility for updating contact details, paying fees, recording CPD activity and requesting information and resources.

Assisting new practitioners

Support provided via a sliding fee scale for new members in the early days of practice so newly qualified registrants have more opportunity to build their practices gradually.

Promoting the simple one stop progression

From student membership to registration on completion of study at our accredited courses. No need for lengthy submissions.

Registered member of

Society of Homeopaths

Promoting the independent route

A faster, competitively priced and accessible route to registration for experienced and well qualified practitioners who have qualified through non-accredited pathways while still meeting the high standards required of registered homeopaths at the Society.

Offering an international route

Welcoming practitioners from our wider global community to Registered Overseas membership.

“ I have always been very impressed by the professionalism the SOH exudes and the support it offers its members. ”

Angelika Metzger

Dr Alex Tournier

David Tredinnick MP (retired)

Supporting students

Free membership for students attending a Society accredited course including those living overseas. For the next stage of the professional journey we help identify registered members and colleges offering student clinical observation opportunities and a competitively priced student clinical membership package.

Equality, Diversity & Inclusion

In line with other responsible organisations we issued an inclusivity and diversity statement. To develop our understanding and implementation a new committee and working group will be established in 2021.

Annual General Meeting

Delivered on line for the first time in May. Members attended a discussion session ahead of the business of the AGM and the presentation of the annual accounts with a review of the previous year's activities.

Awarding achievement

Angelika Metzger and Dr Alex Tournier received Society Fellowships for achievements in education and research respectively. David Tredinnick MP (retired) was presented with an Honorary Fellowship for his longstanding support of homeopathy.

"It's so lovely to always pick up the phone and know that you would be there, always friendly and cheerful and helpful and would know the answers always."

“ Thank you so much for your understanding. ”

Hosting a graduate workshop

2020 Society graduates and final year student members were invited to a free online practical one-day workshop in October. 'Taking the leap from student to practitioner' hosted presentations from Tracy Karkut Law - a 7-step plan to grow a homeopathy business, Ros Sturley who provided practice support and Selina Hatherley addressed how to set up a community clinic.

The resources and recordings from the event were added to the CPD hub in the members area of the website.

“ Very useful and good to see you online... made me feel more connected to the Society. ”

CONTINUING PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

The CPD audit this year once again demonstrated that members are investing time in professional development.

My Practice support webinar programme was launched

My Practice Website – making an impact

My Practice Social Media – making connections

We ask all our registered and student clinical members to monitor and evaluate their clinical skills, actively extend their knowledge base and personal development through continuing professional development. Although 2020 was a difficult year in many ways, it has provided the opportunity to engage in CPD with the availability of more accessible online (free or low cost) events. Many members have used this time for further reflection and to update their knowledge. Members submit CPD record forms biennially.

My Practice support

Webinar programme was launched in November with the first two events offering guidance on website content and making connections via social media. The webinars were oversubscribed and repeated to ensure all members could access the events. The first two webinars were presented by the Professional Standards team and more events are scheduled for 2021 to include 'Dealing with difficult situations', 'The patient voice', 'Looking after yourself through supervision' and 'Keeping in touch'. The resources and recordings of the events were added to the members area of the website via the CPD hub.

32 Local group meetings

Took place across the UK in 2020 in the spring, autumn and winter. Responding to the lockdown situation, 'Working remotely' was the topic for the spring. As part of the internal PSA membership consultation 'Have your say' was the focus for the additional summer meetings and 'Pain management' was discussed during the winter meetings.

“ Friendly delivery and nice to be connected, especially at this time. ”

“ Good to see so many attendees and to hear and share concerns and questions regarding practice websites. ”

“ Very helpful. Gives a window on what Society members think, do, should do and be aware of. ”

PROFESSIONAL STANDARDS

Professional Standards Authority Accreditation

The Society has taken part in the voluntary accreditation provided by the Accredited Registers Programme run by the Professional Standards Authority (PSA) since 2014.

During 2020 the PSA set a number of conditions for the Society to meet to maintain its accreditation. The Society successfully met some of the conditions, but as a result of an interim panel review of the Society's progress on those due in October 2020, the PSA decided its accreditation should be suspended. The Society was disappointed that no allowance was made for the additional and incredibly challenging circumstances that Covid-19 presented at the same time as dealing with the new conditions. The Society has been given a 12-month window in which to meet the PSA requirements and have its accreditation reinstated.

The consultation with our members in 2020 indicated their continuing strong support for professional standards. We will continue our 40-year tradition and strive to be the most effectively regulated and valued professional organisation for homeopaths in the UK. The Society's Mission remains to ensure that patients receive the highest standards of care from our members.

Professional Conduct Support - a unique service

Our professional conduct service is available at the end of a telephone to provide assurance and advice to both Society members and members of the public. Enquiries from members range from asking for information relating to legislation and the Society Code of Ethics to information about websites.

During the year we have:

- ✓ Provided support on working remotely and signposted to government advice around Coronavirus and lockdown
- ✓ Offered safeguarding advice and support
- ✓ Supported our members through a range of resources including a review of telephone and internet prescribing guidelines, practice management and social media guidelines
- ✓ Conducted website audits and assisted members with common enquiries regarding website content
- ✓ Provided advice and guidance to members on terminology for use on their websites, promotional materials and social media
- ✓ Delivered the My Practice website webinar event programme and resources to provide extra support to members
- ✓ Held conversations with members regarding new position statements following adverse media coverage around sensitive issues. Carried out social media checks and addressed skeptic concerns
- ✓ Improved and revised professional conduct procedures, guidelines for an appeal hearing, adjunctive therapy guidelines, unspent convictions documents, policy for escalation of concerns and persistent complaints policy
- ✓ Reviewed the Code of Ethics and Practice and Articles of Association
- ✓ Responded and supplied information to the Professional Standards Authority as part of the accreditation process

REGISTRATION

Routes to membership

For homeopaths who have qualified through one of our accredited courses, joining the Society is a simple next step process. It's even easier if a practitioner is already a student member - progression to registration is automatic.

The independent route to registered membership is aimed at individuals who have studied at colleges not accredited by the Society, or alternative pathways.

Registered member of Overseas registered membership continues to receive interest from the wider global community. As part of the process, our Registration Committee review all applications to ensure that all new members meet our high standards.

Joel Kreisberg

“ Found the event really interesting and thought provoking. ”

Matt Pepper

Education for future professionals

Through 2020 we have continued to support innovation and diversity in education, leading to a professional qualification in the practice of homeopathy. In establishing and maintaining the first and only homeopathy course recognition system in the UK over twenty-five years ago, the Society has made a huge contribution to raising standards and promoting excellence.

- ✓ Ros Sturley was appointed Education Lead. Lydia Pearn as Education Assessor and Helen Tye Talkin as Education Moderator; both are registered members and have extensive knowledge of Education. The team is supported by Communications support advisor Liz Wootliff who has a number of years' experience in the Professional Standards field.
- ✓ We aim to continue and improve support for course providers and following delays caused by lockdown, look forward to visiting colleges in 2021
- ✓ We continue to offer free student membership to all students on a Society accredited course and provide a low cost Student clinical membership package once insurance cover becomes a requirement
- ✓ The Guidelines for Course accreditation have been updated with a particular emphasis on the inclusion of online courses. We have also altered the format to make it easier to follow and templates for course providers to complete
- ✓ The Educators online workshop held in April 2020 included presentations from Society Chair Linda Wicks on promoting professional practice with new guidelines for CEASE and prophylaxis, and Ros Sturley addressed safeguarding and Coronavirus, ending the event with a Q & A session
- ✓ A termly student e-newsletter provides students with the latest news and developments
- ✓ Student awards were presented by Chair Linda Wicks to Tana Blum of the North West College of Homeopathy for demonstrating kindness, consideration and support towards her friends and colleagues and Anna Hughes of Salisbury Homeopathy College who received a prize for commitment to her study of homeopathy whilst overcoming a personal, emotional or physical challenge. The two winners were awarded one year's registered membership free on qualifying, plus a complimentary place for the Society's Annual conference in 2021.

130 students attended the free online student workshop in June to see presentations by Matt Pepper on building a successful and varied practice complemented by refreshing ideas on self-care and how to become a happy practitioner.

Joel Kreisberg joined the webinar from the USA to discuss how masculine and feminine dynamics impact homeopathic healing.

COMMUNICATIONS

On members' behalf we continue to handle external communications issuing positive statements, speaking to journalists and briefing policy matters.

During the year we have:

- ✓ Kept members up to date via regular e newsletters by highlighting new developments, high quality research and special offers with additional information relating to remote working and current government advice on the pandemic - over 110 information packed ebulletins were sent to members throughout the year
- ✓ Published the online monthly e newsletter 'Remedies' for readers with an interest in homeopathy
- ✓ Improved and developed our interactive website offering an extensive range of services including event resources and films, marketing and business support, research resources and online journal library
- ✓ Published topical comment via the Opinion website news section by a variety of members, staff and directors
- ✓ Developed our online presence across social media including Facebook, Instagram and Twitter
- ✓ Ensured representation by members of the Board at government level including meetings of the Integrated Healthcare Collaboration.

4Homeopathy Campaign 2020

As a member of 4Homeopathy, we contribute financially and represent at 4Homeopathy group meetings. In partnership with 4Homeopathy, the Society is united with the profession in the promotion of homeopathy to the public and remains one of the key funders of the campaign activity. Homeopathy Awareness Week (HAW) takes place from 10-16th April every year and forms part of the group's campaign work. In 2020 4Homeopathy activities included:

- ✓ Re-launch of fresh new www.findahomeopath.org website, which provides an additional way for potential patients to find registered members of the Society
- ✓ Homeopathy Awareness Week heralded a week of online activities to highlight homeopathy's many benefits to health and wellbeing
- ✓ Free info-graphics and social media posts were shared for the profession to promote homeopathy online. Members of the public were signposted to the 4Homeopathy website
- ✓ 4Homeopathy issued a joint homeopathy sector statement regarding Coronavirus following a series of negative press stories about the profession. The joint statement was issued to protect the future of homeopathy and in turn to support patient choice, reflecting the Society's guidance on clarity for the public.
- ✓ Homeopathy registers including the Society of Homeopaths, Faculty of Homeopathy and Alliance of Registered Homeopaths in conjunction with other homeopathy partners came together to provide clarification for patients seeking advice and homeopathy treatment.

NEW HOMEOPATH - JOURNAL

New Homeopath, the Society journal (available on subscription to non-members) with its bold and contemporary design reflects the practice of homeopathy around the world today.

Now in its fourth year, New Homeopath is building a reputation as essential reading for the modern homeopath

New Homeopath engages readers by:

- ✓ Providing the latest thinking on many aspects of homeopathy. Fresh articles on homeopathic philosophy, materia medica and methodology stand alongside political analysis, campaigning and practice building
- ✓ Publishing visionary articles from top homeopathic thinkers who are shaping our practice today
- ✓ Illustrating the current issues that homeopaths are facing within the social context of practice, as well as providing new insights and information on technical aspects of homeopathy
- ✓ Standing as a strong and proud advocate for homeopathy, it shines a light on the healing potential that homeopathy provides, the professionalism and expertise of registered homeopaths, and the excellence of the Society of Homeopaths.

*“The journal provides a place where we can share ideas, philosophy, provings, case material, research information and more. It keeps us up to date with the innovations and workings within our profession. It is therefore useful for students and practitioners alike.
It connects us in the work that we do and the love we have for homeopathy.”*

SUMMARY FINANCIAL REPORT

The Society has been working hard to continue the financial plan to build up the reserves to a more sustainable level over the medium term. This is reflected in the results that show a small surplus of £9k compared to the 2019 operating deficit of £9.2k (2019 financial deficit of £35.8k after adjusting for legacy spending and subsidiary company write off).

The Board is always mindful of exploring new sources of income. A significant achievement towards the end of this year is the lease of the upper floor of the office. This will bring in rental income and help reduce overheads.

The Board and Staff work proactively to identify areas where services can be made more efficient. A prime example of this in 2020 is the way online communication has been used resulting in a significant saving in both travel time and costs.
